In this tutorial you will learn how to design and code a simple but effective and beautiful RSS Widget. RSS stands for Really Simple Syndication. It is a simple mechanism that relays content across the web, automatically. For the purposes of this tutorial, we will be using the word 'content' to mean any content that can be published to the Internet. The content can be text, audio, video or anything else that can be published in the 'open web' - meaning it can be viewed by anyone anywhere. We have created this widget so that we can provide you with a simple way of getting the latest content from any of the RSS feeds that we have designed. There are a couple of main advantages of using RSS. These are the speed and the automaticness with which it updates. The reason we can update the content automatically is because RSS is 'pull' based. This means that the content provider on the server will not have to constantly 'push' updates to a server and wait for a server request to update their content.

Instead, the content will be updated when the RSS feed's content is updated, which is automatically. The speed with which RSS works is something that many people don't realise. The speed with which RSS updates is something that many people don't realise. The first few times we wrote the app, it used to take up to an hour to update the widget with a new feed. Since we have changed the code so it's done it in about 10 seconds. So although RSS is a bit of a new concept, it's one that can save a lot of time for you, if you use it wisely. Let's get started. You will need:

- ☐ You need a Widget Designer account (of course!)
- ☐ A Yahoo! account ◆ 1d6a3396d6

Plants as Pets - The Truth About How to Grow Plants as Pets

Considerations For Growing Plants As Pets

Making your home filled with plants can be a relaxing way to make your life more tranquil. While many people have a green thumb and enjoy nurturing other plants, you may wonder if your gardening ability is adequate enough to successfully grow plants. Bonsai and landscaping are both hobbies in which plants are grown and cared for. People who love plants are those who can not only appreciate them, but also be experts in the maintenance and care needed to grow them. While some plants need only a little care to make them look beautiful, there are others that require a lot of time and energy to achieve their potential. Plants have been around since the beginning of man. They were used for health and for their beauty and fragrance, before they were incorporated into medicine and everyday life. The science behind plants is important to understand when growing plants as pets. Plants as Pets - The Truth About How to Grow Plants as Pets There are many considerations when growing plants as pets. These considerations include choosing a variety of plants, which plants are best suited for your home, how much space is needed for a particular plant, how much light it needs, how it should be treated, and how often it should be watered. When thinking about the best way to care for your plants, it is helpful to understand their requirements. Any plant that is placed outdoors should be moved into a container of some kind at some point during the winter. In the spring and summer, the outdoor
